Timon & Melchior Grau

01 time is only movement,

SUPER is pleased to announce the exhibition 01 time is only movement, by the Berlin based artist duo Timon and Melchior Grau.

Over the course of the exhibition a continuous, live executed gesture provokes a tension that plays with our perception of time, object and space. For the whole duration of the exhibition two people are walking through the empty exhibition space. The walking does not follow a planned choreography or pattern. This continuous movement has in its archetypal presentation almost a ready made character and can be seen as a metaphor for activity and reaction.

The moving colorful clothes contrasts with the white emptiness of the exhibition room.

Timon (1990) and Melchior (1991) Graus intermedial work circles around a concentrated visual language. Interceptions of mediums, especially painting, photography and film are being reflected. In the last years with a focus on sublime human expression and identity. With their minimalistic approach the duo questions a classical idea of portraiture by showing its human expression without indexical reference to an individual person. Their work is reduced and concentrated but leaves space for the viewers own perspective.
